TIME OUT NEW YORK

(Voted Top 10 Pizza in NY)

If your grandma made pizzas they might look something like the ones at this Garment District GEM. The super thin crusts are rectangular and have crisp raised edges, with ample char and some nuttiness. Each slice is covered with delicious, tangy sauce and a perfect square of melted mozzarella.

NEW YORK MAGAZINE

(Best of New York)

Lazzara's Pizza Café is a favorite among garmentos and square-pie aficionados, this old-fashioned, tin-ceilinged pizzeria serves its crusty Sicilian pies in ancient, oven-worn baking pans.

WITH GREAT PLEASURE

By Ruth Reichl

I announce the discovery at another good pizza. I'm talking about the kind of pizza you call out for, the kind that comes with a choice of toppings, the kind that tastes so good you want a second piece of. But when you get up for seconds, the whole things been eaten up. And that's what you get at Lazzara's on West 38th Street. They make a small square pizza on a crisp terrific crust. And I am talking only from take-out experience. If the pizza was good after walking 5 blocks in a cardboard box in the cold, it must be great eaten on the premises.

UNDER $5

There's a red awning on 38th Street that leads up to pizza heaven, Lazzara's, formerly the Heroine, bakes the best square pizza in Manhattan. Only Rizzo's in Astoria and Umbertos in Boston have to my knowledge, a comparable pie. This is not Sicilian as we know it, the crust is thinner and crispier – love those corners – there's only a thin layer of soft delicate Mozzarella. The best extra is the hot pepperoni, which is cut into tiny strips, giving the topping a unique and pleasing texture. To fully appreciate Lazzara's pizza, order just one or two toppings at first before moving on to the specials. The dining area is also seasonal in itself. It's a quiet, old-fashioned room, seating about 70, with a high stamped tin ceiling and lightly stenciled walls. This is a no-nonsense joint. 221 W. 38th Street, near Seventh Avenue • (212) 944-7792-3-4 • Open Mon. – Fri. 11 to 4 p.m. Two-slice, one beverage minimum per person. Free delivery in area.

A SQUARE MEAL

By Daniel Young

Lazzara's delivers wonderful thin Sicilian Pizza to the Fashion Industry, including the houses of Donna Karan, Calvin Klein, & Vera Wang. Originally called Heroine Pizza, the upstairs Sicilian only pizzeria was bought by Sebastian & Tony Lazzara, themselves of Sicilian origin, in 1985. Small six slices pies (that gives you four corners) feature such extras as fresh mushrooms, sundried tomatoes & sliced olives. The mozzarella is good, but the sauce is the thing.
